SARISBURY – Summer 2016

Tranquil: The beautifully restored pond. Above: Past and present councillors admire the orchard.

THE DREAM COMES TRUE

HOLLY HILL Leisure Centre is on course for its public opening in September.

Everyone Active, who will operate the £9.5m centre, will start fitting out at the beginning of August.

A Portacabin has been set up on site to deal with membership inquiries and job opportunities.

Two new junior football pitches will be provided next to the centre, plus a new children's play area and a multi-use games area once building is complete.

This will cater for a range of ages and abilities, providing space for sports such as football, basketball and netball.

Part of the Coldeast Park site which is open to the public has a variety of habitats including a pond, woodlands, meadows and orchard which had been neglected for years.

The Council asked one of our rangers, Helen Sosnowski (pictured) and her team of volunteers, to clear the site.

Much of the orchard was an impenetrable jungle of brambles and ivy, but once clear the trees had their first prune for years and blossomed in May.

Urgent work was also needed on the unkempt pond and overgrown path on one side of it; so in early autumn 2014 the path was widened and overhanging trees were cleared.

However, the pond needed dredging and in winter 2015 it was pumped out, cleaned and re-filled by a natural spring feed. All the wild life and fish have returned.

This winter, volunteers were hard at work clearing other parts of the site, especially the overgrown meadow which was once used to house pigs!

Sarisbury Councillor Seán Woodward said: "Helen and her team of volunteers have our full admiration for all their hard work and I congratulate them on their brilliant achievement to date.

"Holly Hill Leisure Centre has been a goal that we have shared for many years. It takes a long time to acquire the land and save the necessary £9m, but the people of Fareham's Western Wards will be delighted with what we have been able to create."

Stripping bureaucrats' powers could boost local economy and enterprise

THE GOVERNMENT proposes certain powers wielded by Whitehall bureaucrats can be decided by local council leaders working with an elected mayor.

A deal has been offered to councils in South Hampshire, including Fareham, which would provide:

- Annual £30m funding for 30 years to invest in economic growth and housing including power to borrow
- Extra to funding already announced for Local Enterprise Partnership and 8 local councils; will meet estimated

£2bn costs for infrastructure in South Hampshire

- Keeping local business rates (£400m); leaving current system of government funding for local councils
- Powers over statutory plans for housing and infrastructure, ability to designate greenbelt
- Increase productivity, create more and better jobs by supporting business growth
- Control adult education and training budget, focusing on skills so people get jobs and businesses prosper

- Deliver much-needed new homes, particularly affordable homes for local people.
- Control of dedicated transport budget, franchised bus services and local authority roads

Once in place, we hope to demonstrate our successes and negotiate for further powers for Solent region.

It does NOT mean reorganising or scrapping borough councils and creating a unitary council covering Hampshire as proposed by HCC.

Bid to end hospital scandal

Action is under way to cut the NHS red tape that ties up progress at Fareham's £24m Community Hospital.

The hospital has operated office hours only 5 days a week since it opened 5 years ago.

Fareham MP Suella Fernandes set up a task force comprising representatives from local NHS organisations and Friends of Fareham Community Hospital.

She persuaded Health Minister Jeremy Hunt to visit the hospital in January when he was told about its problems, and asked the task force to identify specific proposals to rectify the confused management.

Grants available

County Councillor Seán Woodward has £8,000 available to award in grant support to local organisations.

Projects that can be supported are generally for specific items needed by community groups rather than for running costs.

He recently awarded £900 for audio equipment and sweatshirts for SIGN4FUN who meet at St Margaret Mary Church in Park Gate and bring singing of songs to hard-of-hearing groups in the Fareham area.

He said "It was a really uplifting experience to join the group for rehearsals recently.

"What they do is truly inspiring and will I know be much appreciated by deaf people in our community, young and old alike."

No smoking

Following residents' comments, all bus shelters in the town will carry stickers requesting the public not to smoke while waiting.

New Mayor's charities

Fareham's new Mayor, Councillor Connie Hockley, has chosen the Wessex Haven Breast Cancer unit in Titchfield and Y-Services which supports youth work as her charities.

Concern over bad parking

AMONG many residents' complaints with motoring and traffic issues is inconsiderate parking.

The car turning right had to go directly into the path of oncoming traffic to pass the parked VW, which is also not close enough to the kerb.

Rule 243 of The Highway Code says: DO NOT stop or park opposite or within 10 metres (32 ft) of a junction, except in an authorised parking space.

Developers must stick to conditions

CONDITIONS have been imposed by Fareham planners at a controversial development in Lower Swanwick.

Developers won an appeal after a public inquiry to build 37 dwellings on land adjoining The Navigator pub.

It gave access from Swanwick Lane with loss of the lay-by next to the playground which provides parking for 3 vehicles.

Councillor Jon Butts said the planning committee considered the detailed application at its June 22 meeting and approved it subject to conditions.

These included provision for 6 parking spaces reserved for playground users, with appropriate signage and ongoing access to those spaces.

The mature tree lines and hedge boundaries to the north and west must be retained.

The playground will stay and must have a new boundary bow fence, as well as what is termed 'natural surveillance' from overlooking new properties.

Swanwick Lane traffic calming scheme welcomed

Pleased: Residents Jenny and Bob McInerney with Councillors Jon Butts and Seán Woodward on Swanwick Lane where traffic calming is to be installed this summer.

URGENT traffic calming measures will be installed in Swanwick Lane during the autumn.

They come in response to residents' demands and will be aimed particularly at reducing speeds.

Newly-elected Sarisbury Councillor Jon Butts says Swanwick Lane carries a significant volume of traffic, more since the bus gate into Whiteley was opened to all traffic to be followed by two more northerly accesses to Whiteley – Bluebell Way and Whiteley Way.

"While traffic volumes are unlikely to fall until the first of the extra accesses into Whiteley is completed in a couple of years' time, we did make a pledge to do what we could, working with residents, to reduce traffic speed."

After public meetings and exhibitions plans were drawn up for traffic calming features, including build-outs, chicanes and speed cushions which, with extra parking restrictions, received general support from residents.

Also supported is a plan to extend the length of the dedicated left turn at the bottom of Swanwick Lane.

Jon adds: "I am sure this scheme will have a positive effect and am delighted that Hampshire County Council is keeping to a pledge made by Councillor Seán Woodward to implement speed reduction measures."

Once the calming measures are in place, the next on the list will be Botley Road through Burridge, including the Swanwick Lane junction with Botley Road.

Litter costs you millions

LITTER clearance and fly tipping costs Fareham council taxpayers millions of pounds a year and much of it could be avoided.

The Council collects litter from 600 bins across the Borough, each of which costs £350 to replace.

Collections from the bins vary from three times a day in busy shopping and pedestrian areas to weekly in some suburban streets and greenways.

Teams of operatives can be seen all over the Borough cleaning and collecting the litter from the bins as well as a great deal of rubbish that is strewn on pavements, in bushes and other public areas.

Volunteers can also be spotted in various neighbourhoods, including Sarisbury, Swanwick and Burridge.

A message from your newly-elected councillor

JON BUTTS writes: "I am grateful to all who encouraged and supported my candidacy, and I will endeavour to continue the good work of my predecessor, David Swanbrow.

"It has been a pleasure to meet many residents over recent weeks, hearing first hand what people think about Council services and our local area.

"More than once, I have been pleasantly surprised to hear the Council being complimented and to 'keep up the good work'.

"Positive feedback helps to maintain perspective while following up on specific concerns and complaints for residents when required. Many residents take pride in our area and its appearance and I will do my best to maintain Fareham as a pleasant place to live and work.

"Most concerns to date are about traffic, parking and grass-cutting, also school provision for Whiteley when the development north of Whiteley starts. I will work to help resolve these.

"I have begun to meet community-minded local volunteers and organisations, often 'unsung heroes' who provide and manage community space.

"They enable a range of activities which benefit people of all age-groups and help make our communities a success. To all those who volunteer I am happy to offer support as a councillor where appropriate and to all residents who are welcome to get in touch."

Keeping accesses open

COUNCIL-OWNED woodlands across the ward are well used by residents, who are keen to ensure they are maintained with good accesses.

Councillor Jon Butts has been working with Council officers to see how to make the most heavily used accesses passable more of the time, especially after wet weather.

He also wants gateways which have failed, mainly due to the effects of weather, replaced.

Jon says: "I have clarified ownership of responsibilities for cutting of the common grass areas which have recently become unkempt.

"The major national housebuilder concerned has been approached by Council officers to ensure grounds maintenance requirements, which formed part of planning consent, are upheld."

Minister praises Suella for work on landmark Bill

TERRORISTS, paedophiles and serious fraudsters exploit the Internet, social media and other sophisticated communications to scheme online, making it more challenging to keep track of them and gather the vital evidence to secure a prosecution or thwart plots.

The Commons passed the landmark Investigatory Powers Bill to regulate the interception powers used by our intelligence, security and law enforcement services.

I have taken a close interest in this issue and served on the joint committee of MPs and Lords that studied the draft Bill, and on the subsequent Commons committee that looked at current proposals.

Replying to the debate, Security Minister John Hayes congratulated me on the role I played in both committees.

He said: "The threat she described so vividly is, as she said, worldwide and of a kind that would allow us to do nothing other than take the necessary steps to counter it in the defence of our freedoms."

FERNANDES MP for Fareham

Time to unite in the wake of Referendum

THANK you to everyone who voted in the EU Referendum. Nearly 80% of Fareham residents took part in the biggest exercise in democracy in decades, resulting in an historic decision.

Whichever way you voted, I was pleased to see many new people vote for the first time, increased numbers of young people taking part and vigorous campaigning from both sides.

People, volunteers, attending meetings, speaking up in debates – all these are the lifeblood of politics and democracy.

By over 1,000,000 votes, Britain voted to leave the EU. Fareham reflected that trend, with a strong majority of residents voting to take back control of our democracy, our laws, immigration and our money and to look beyond the EU to forge more global trade and commercial links.

Many people did not vote to leave the EU and were disappointed, but I reassure them Britain has a robust economy, the talent and experience to secure the best settlement for the country.

I held my 'Big Fareham EU debate' in Portchester when over 100 local people asked questions to find out more about the issue.

I will be working hard to contribute to this effort in Parliament and I know that the spirit of open-mindedness, enterprise, economic prudence, compassion and tolerance that make our country great will be maintained.

As we navigate the next chapter of our history, we need to put past divisions aside and unite in the national interest, respecting each other while engaging in healthy discussion.

FAREHAM CONSTITUENCY NEWS

APPRENTICESHIPS offer young people a great opportunity to learn professional skills, gain confidence and earn a living.

They also enable businesses to develop careers of talented young people in Fareham, ensuring the workforce of the future has the skills it needs.

I was grateful to work with local companies such as NATS (pictured) and Parcar who sponsored my first Apprenticeships Fair and Fareham College, where it was held, to enable young people to meet employers and learn more.

Many local businesses took part such as Yo Telecom, Babcock International, Lloyds and MB Air Systems, plus the Royal Navy and Royal Marines. Over 500 young people attended.

Look out for my event next year. If you are a local employer keen to learn more about taking on an apprentice or holding a stall, let me know.

Broadband meeting

Many residents have contacted me about problems with their broadband service.

I have organised a public meeting for residents on October 28 at 7pm at Whiteley Community Centre to meet representatives of BT, the County Council and phone companies to voice their concerns. Let me know if you plan to attend.

Join me for a coffee

I enjoy meeting local residents and listening to their concerns.

As well as regular surgeries, you can join me for a Q&A and discussion on any topic at my coffee mornings and town hall events.

I recently held them in the Victory Hall, Warsash and Highlands Hub (pictured). Sign up to my monthly newsletter via suella@suellafernandes.co.uk to get updates on future dates.
